Chapter Director

Greetings Chapter E Participants.

Why join GWRRA?

I was a "lone wolf" rider and aging. My friends stopped riding or couldn't any-longer. I loved to ride and wanted to share that love with like-minded people. I didn't fit the image of the "biker". Plus there's safety in numbers where age and health issues may be a factor.

When I purchased my Wing, I was told about two organizations, GWRRA and AMA. Both opened my eyes to what I was looking for...a group of people that ride safely and ride a lot!!! But mainly, I was so glad that the opportunity to constantly train and improve your riding skills are available. Speaking of improving... We just had a classroom session for "Group Riding"...an outstanding course and presentation given by Gordon Combs. After the classroom portion, we have 10 bikes ride to Colonial Beach for dinner and put our classroom information into practice! Other than avoiding a crazed raccoon, the ride was superb. I urge you to try to attend these sessions...as we do fall into comfortable routines and forget some fundamentals. So mark your calendar for July 19th for the next classroom session. The subject will be "Crash Scene Response". The classroom session will start (promptly 😊) at 3 pm to about 4:15 pm. Then we will ride to Lowry's in Tappahannock, Va. for dinner. We are also planning another Parking Lot Practice. Notice for that is forthcoming.

If you have a ride you'd like to do or have plans to go for a day ride, overnight trip or cross country and would like to share the experience with your fellow riders, send the info to your Newsletter Editor to be included in the newsletter or myself to be added in an email, our webpage or Facebook page.

What were you doing Sunday May 31st? I know what you were not doing, you were not having fun with 15 of your GWRRA family that day. We started the day at 3 PM with a team riding seminar attended by 11 members. Then, 3 of our wives met us in the parking lot to ride with us to Colonial Beach for dinner and to practice what we learned. In Colonial Beach, another spouse caught up with us for 15 total as we enjoyed a wonderful meal at Dockside Restaurant. After the meal, we headed back to Fredericksburg and a number of us went to Carl's for ice cream. It was a great time with great friends and this is one of the reasons I joined this group.

Now if that sounded like fun and you wished you had gone, take heart....we are doing it again. On Sunday, July 19th, we will meet at 3 PM for a Crash Scene Response Seminar for 1 hour, then we will head off to dinner (no, we WILL NOT practice what we learned this time). More information to follow.

On May 24th, 28 members came to my house for hotdogs and a potluck. We had 11 bikes in the driveway and Lyle had a CB installed while there (thanks to all who assisted him). We really had a great time eating, laughing and talking and I look forward to doing it again. Did I say doing it again..... Stay tuned, it is coming soon.

The Triathlons have gone well so far this year. Thank you to everyone who has participated to help raise funds for our chapter, your the best.

Wing Ding will be here before you know it. At last count, we had 15 members going. If you want to ride with our group, get with Claude or myself soon so we can get you our itinerary.

If you have any ideas for rides, please get with me so we can get it scheduled.

Ride Safe and Ride Soon,

Gordon Combs

Wet Riding

No matter how conservatively we plan to ride, we are all susceptible to getting caught in the rain. This month, let's review how to deal with it. (By the way, this applies equally to trikes and bikes.)

We have all, I suppose, heard that roads are slickest the first 15 minutes or so of a rain storm. That may very well be the most important thing a rider can know about rain. If you can avoid riding during this period, you'd be well advised to do so. If you are already riding when the rain hits, ride as if you had less than half the traction you have on dry roads, increase your separation from the traffic ahead, lighten up on your braking, and slow more for the corners for those 15 minutes. If the rain is light, it may take much more than 15 minutes to get past this slickest stage.

You may think that if it is just starting to rain you can wait until the all the pavement is wet before traction will be reduced. Wrong! In fact, the pavement is probably the slickest when the rain has just started and you can still see where individual drops have dropped. This seems counterintuitive but I have confirmed this statement on at least two occasions. Just last week I was making a left hand turn from a stoplight and felt the rear tire start to slide while the pavement was only "half wet." I was riding cautiously and still felt this.

Once the dust and other contaminants have been washed off the pavement, you can expect to have about 70% of the traction you'd have on dry roads (according to everything I've read in my research on this subject). This assumes your tires are in good shape – they have good tread, are properly inflated, and aren't too old (rubber gets hard with age and a tire 4 or more years old may provide less wet traction). Although you only have 70% of the dry traction, you do have 70% so don't tense up more than is warranted. A tense rider is not a smooth rider. And a tense rider probably doesn't notice things he/she would normally notice and adjust for during a ride

Another thing to watch for is hydroplaning. If the rain is very heavy or there is standing water, there is a danger of hydroplaning at highway speeds. A hydro-planing tire has 0% traction. A dual track vehicle (e.g. car, trike) might get away with hydroplaning for a short period of time but a bike won't last very long at all. The hydroplaning danger increases with speed, worn tires, lower tire pressure (because the tire flattens more and the contact patch enlarges), and the depth of water on the surface. You are clearly in control of your speed, tire condition, and tire pressure. And if you think about it, you also have some control over the depth of water you ride in.

Ride responsibly...

Roads are designed to drain by sloping them slightly. A two-lane road on flat ground will be crowned with its center higher than either side so the water can drain to the sides. Divided multilane highways are likely to have a slight camber to coax the water to one side or the other. In a hard rain, a lane or track further down the resulting “hill” will have deeper water in it than a lane or track further up – lanes and tracks further down have not only the water hitting them directly but also all the water that fell a few moments earlier on the lanes or tracks higher up that has flowed down. So, all other things being equal, choose to ride in the higher lane or track. On an Interstate, for instance, you might choose the left lane if the road is cambered down to the right. But, as you come to a left hand sweeper that is slightly banked, you’d need to be in the right lane to minimize the hydroplane risk. In some traffic situations, making lane adjustments for each curve or straightaway might be easy and natural. But, it is more likely that Interstate traffic will dictate that you stick to your lane. In that case, at least realize the hydroplaning risk is changing and adjust your speed accordingly if you are caught in a heavy rain. And, if the vehicle ahead suddenly makes a big splash, know that you are about to hit some standing water and do what you can to slow down before hitting it yourself.

Finally, dress for the rain as soon as you encounter it. I can’t tell you how many times I’ve been group riding and it starts to drizzle but somehow we all keep riding and hoping it will stop or hoping we will see a gas station with an awning that we can stop under. When the rain doesn’t stop and we do not find an ideal stopping place, we end up wet, cold, and miserable – even after putting on our rain gear. Dumb. You would think we would learn to suit up as soon as the first drop falls but I haven’t seen this happen as often as it should.

At chapter "E" we emphasize that we indeed are a team of riders/co-riders interested in Goldwings, motorcycle riding, good food and most of all, having fun. Some think that we are mostly interested in eating. You will need to join and be the judge! Come on out and join us! We would love to see you! We meet to eat at 6:30 pm on the third Wednesday of each month and the chapter meeting starts at 7:30pm. We are located 10320 Spotsylvania Avenue, Fredericksburg, VA 22408, about 50 miles south of Washington D.C. and about 50 miles north of Richmond, VA.
